

Washington DC Young Enterprising Women Mentoring Forum

December 4, 2025

10:00 a.m. – 1:30 p.m.

Hosted at Bell Multicultural High School | 3101 16th Street NW, Washington, DC 20010

Attention Young Women Interested in STEM!

The Enterprising Women Foundation (EWF) and the Institute of Consumer Money Management (ICMM) are proud to host our Annual Regional STEM Event for high-achieving young women in Science, Technology, Engineering, and Math (STEM). This unique program is designed to inspire, educate, and empower the next generation of women leaders in STEM fields.

We are inviting schools across the region to send delegations of talented students to participate in a day filled with learning, mentorship, and growth. This event offers students the rare opportunity to connect with accomplished women leaders, gain practical financial knowledge, and explore future career paths in STEM.

Highlights of the Program Include:

- Financial Literacy Training led by ICMM, equipping students with essential tools to understand and manage money as future leaders.
- A Dynamic Panel Discussion featuring top women entrepreneurs and professionals in STEM, who will share their personal journeys, challenges, and successes.
- Small-Group Mentoring Sessions, with one experienced mentor at each table of 10 students, allowing for personal guidance, encouragement, and Q&A.

In addition to these sessions, students will enjoy a complimentary lunch and the chance to engage in life-changing networking opportunities. This is more than just an event—it's an experience designed to broaden horizons, build confidence, and inspire young women to dream bigger than ever before.

Whether your students aspire to be engineers, scientists, innovators, or entrepreneurs, this program will give them valuable insights, practical knowledge, and a supportive community to help them take the next step in their journey.
